

EDW. H. HARRIMAN PUT UNDER ARREST

Violates Regulations at the Varsity Race.

WILL LOSE HIS LICENSE

Persists in Following the Shells in His Launch.

Railway King, in Motor Boat, Chases Harvard-Yale Crews—Refuses to Stop Until Arrested—May Be Fined $500—Shakes Fist at Regatta Chairman—Violates U. S. Treasury Department Rules.

New London, June 27.—Edward H. Harriman was arrested here this afternoon, and on the order of the naval aid of President Roosevelt, that the outcome probably will be a fine of $500 or so for Mr. Harriman and the loss of the license of a power boat in which he was following the Harvard and Yale crews in their annual regatta on the Thames this afternoon.

Mr. Harriman brought his big yacht, the Sultana, up to the New York Yacht Club station here to-day and anchored below the drawbridge, so that he could see the finish of the crews in the 'varsity and other races which were to have been rowed down stream with the ebb tide.

A change in the plans of the regatta committee, C. H. Scheppe, chairman, was caused by rough water, and the race for the 'varsity crews was held over until about sundown, to be rowed upstream from the drawbridge, while the other races were put over until to-morrow morning. Under those conditions it was impossible for Mr. Harriman to see more than the start of the 'varsity race, and it is presumed that he elected to follow the race in a power boat, a speedy craft, which he owns.

Two Woman Guests.

On board the power boat Mr. Harriman had two woman guests and a man, besides an engineer. Mr. Harriman took the wheel and went right out after the shells as soon as the race got under way.

The regulations of the Treasury Department forbid this, because shells dropping behind have often been endangered by following craft.

Mr. Harriman's power boat was hailed several times, but he paid no attention to the warnings, and kept right on up the course. On board the regatta committee boat, the Arrow, belonging to E. P. Whitney, was Naval Aid Billard, who was in charge of the arrangements for keeping the course clear.

Aid Orders Arrest.

He noticed the continued infraction of the rules by the driver of the power boat, and whistled for a launch from one of the revenue cutters to come alongside, and ordered that the man steering the power boat and his party should be arrested and taken on board the revenue cutter Gresham, anchored at the two-mile mark.

The launch set out after the power boat, and, after repeated hailings, managed to persuade the steersman to slow her down. It was explained to the helmsman that he and his party were under arrest.

Then Mr. Harriman submitted to being taken in tow over to the Gresham. Those in the boat were taken on board and the power boat was tied up alongside. Shortly thereafter, the Arrow came up and the identity of the prisoner was discovered by Naval Aid Billard.

Harriman Shakes Fist.

Mr. Harriman seemed to have the idea that all his troubles were chargeable to Mr. Scheppe, inasmuch as the latter is the chairman of the Harvard-Yale regatta committee. Learning over the rail of the Gresham, Mr. Harriman shook his fist at Mr. Scheppe when the latter explained that he was sorry that the arrest had to be made.

"You'll hear from me later," declared Mr. Harriman, angrily. With that as a valedictory, Mr. Harriman closed up for the day.

Mr. Harriman and his friends were subsequently transferred from the revenue cutter to the Sultana.

Neither Mr. Harriman nor Naval Aid Billard was accessible to-night.

MURDERER IS A WRECK.

Irwin Lewis Tries to Commit Suicide in Jail.

West Chester, Pa., June 27.—A mental and physical wreck, Irwin R. Lewis, the young Landenberg farmer who is charged with murdering little Mary Robbins Newlin, tried to commit suicide this morning in his cell in murderers' row, at the county jail.

Tying his suspenders around his neck, he improvised a halter by which he tried to strangle himself. Before doing this, he tore at his wrists with one of the buckles of the suspenders until he opened the arteries. Blood was streaming from the ugly wounds he had inflicted, and he was semi-conscious when a guard discovered him and cut him down.

"Let me die," shrieked Lewis. "Her eyes—they are always looking at me. I don't want to live."

The man became so violent that it was necessary to put him in a strait-jacket.

CANNOT SOLVE MURDER CASE.

Rosenheimer's Death baffles Police and Detectives.

Mount Vernon, N. Y., June 27.—In several respects the murder of Julius Rosenheimer, the rich needle merchant, in his garden at Pelham, bids fair to rank as one of the most mysterious crimes of recent times.

The Pinkertons have put ten of their best men on the case, and although the family has withdrawn the reward of $5,000 for the capture of the robbers, the agency is leaving nothing undone that will bring about the apprehension of the guilty parties.

A peculiar feature of the case is the large number of seemingly good clues which have been either unexplained or communicated to Coroner Wisendanger and his detectives, yet all seem to diverge on different lines, forming nothing in the way of a complete solution.

Coroner Wisendanger held the inquest to-day, and it is reported that he questioned Kid Everett, the ex-prize fighter. After the inquest was over it was announced that it had brought out no new facts.

CULT ROW SPLITS FAMILY.

Utica Druggist Leaves Christian Scientist Wife.

Utica, N. Y., June 27.—Alfred H. Williams, a wealthy and prominent wholesale druggist of this city, who recently gained considerable notoriety by assaulting his wife, following a dispute with her on the subject of Christian Science, to-day signed an agreement by the terms of which the couple will hereafter live apart. Williams to pay his wife $20 per week.

Williams maintains that the breaking up of his home is due to the adoption of Christian Science by his wife and the efforts of Mrs. Williams to have their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Williams, a student at Wellesley College, embrace the Christian Science Church.

Since the occurrence, Williams has inaugurated a determined campaign against the Christian Science cult, varying his pursuit of business with the distribution of papers and pamphlets exposing the alleged evil influences of the sect.

The Williams family has occupied a prominent position in local society, and the rupture in domestic relations has created a mild sensation.

TOWN ALL STIRRED UP.

Schenectady Stands by Dismissed Superintendent.

Schenectady, N. Y., June 27.—Never before has this busy town been stirred so deeply on any public matter as it is now over a question pertaining to the government of the schools.

The town is in a turmoil the like of which has never been seen before. The trouble all arose over the formal action of the board of education in removing Superintendent Freeman of the public school system.

Mr. Freeman is, it seems, very popular with all the people, but his administration was not at all satisfactory to a majority of the commissioners who had kept close tabs on his actions. Just what the charges against him were has not been made public.

It is known, however, that the majority of the board held the opinion that he was rather careless in some of his duties.

CARLOS MAY ABDICATE.

Rumor Says King of Portugal Plans to Give Up the Throne.

London, June 27.—The Madrid correspondent of the Standard says it is rumored there that King Carlos of Portugal is resolved to abdicate in favor of the Duke of Oporto, his brother.

It is probable that martial law will be proclaimed.

WESTERN ROADS RAISE RATES.

Five Per Cent Increase Between Mississippi and the Rockies.

Change to Be Accomplished Through Putting Up of Minimum Weight of Carload Shipments.

Chicago, June 27.—Freight rates in the territory between the Mississippi River and the Rocky Mountains will be advanced 5 per cent by the action of the Western railroads in raising the minimum on carload shipments and other changes in the classification.

It has not yet been determined to cancel many of the carload commodity tariffs, though a few of those whose usefulness has passed will be cancelled and the commodity rated according to classification. It is the intention to cancel all less than carload commodity rates, but as they were made to meet special conditions, the shippers generally have not made any specific complaint.

The call for the meeting of the Western Classification at Charlevoix, Mich., July 18, was sent out yesterday. The docket contains over twenty-five subjects, many of which were rulings issued by F. O. Becker, chairman of the committee, since January 25, 1907, and will be ratified by the committee. The most important of the subjects is "to revise the minimum weights," on which special committees have been at work.

There will be some changes in the furniture minimum, and rule 6A will be generally applied throughout the new classification. The most drastic advance will be in liquid carbonic acid, which will be increased from 24,000 to 40,000 pounds. Binding twine will be increased 10,000, and planes 3,000 pounds in carloads. The minimum on farm wagons will be reduced 4,000.

EX-PRISER MURDER SUSPECT.

Disgraced Episcopal Clergyman Said to Have Killed His Wife.

London, June 27.—Walter Swinburne Hancock, a former Episcopal clergyman, who was pastor of a fashionable church in Chicago, whose his bishop inhibited on account of scandals with women, is under police surveillance here. He is suspected of having poisoned his wife, who was the widow of Paul Townsend Jones, of New York, allegations to that effect having been made in the Kensington Coroners' Court, at an inquiry now being held. Hancock's church troubles occurred in 1897.

LOVING HELD SANE.

State's Expert Considers Accused's Mind Strong.

DEFENSE GAINS ONE POINT.

Defendant's Daughter's Honor Will Not Be Questioned—Defendant Shows Little Indication of Being Under Great Strain—Conferences with Counsel—Arguments To-day.

Special to The Washington Herald.

Houston, Tex., June 27.—The State had its best thing in the Loving murder trial to-day, the introduction of an expert alienist to show the condition of Judge Loving having the effect of offsetting the contentions of Dr. Charles M. Emmons, the noted alienist of Washington.

Not only did the State offer the expert, but it presented several witnesses who had known the accused man for many years, and they each had opinions of the very highest order concerning his physical and mental condition.

There will be no trip by the jury, the lawyers, and others to Nelson County to view the scene of the crime. Lawyers for both sides say they see no reason for this, as the witnesses have told all that is necessary to make the jury familiar with the tragedy.

Judge Loving shows no more indication of the great strain than would be expected. He converses with his counsel and with his friends, paying close attention to all proceedings. He has been seen to smile on more than one occasion at some little incident that took place.

RULES AGAINST STATE.

When court convened to-day Judge Barksdale ruled against the State on the point raised yesterday. The State undertook to prove by Miss Annie Kidd, a niece of the dead man, with whom Miss Loving spent the night following the drive, that Miss Loving had related the occurrences to her at her home, and that she had said that she had taken more whisky than was good for her, and that it had never before had that effect on her; that Miss Loving had not been drugged; that no indignity had been offered.

Judge Barksdale held that the character of Miss Loving and that of young Estes were not the subject of investigation and were not involved in the hearing. He said that Judge Loving may have been hasty and made a terrible mistake, but only the facts which led up to and were directly connected with the killing were under review, and for that reason the evidence in rebuttal by the State would not be admitted.

The State then called several witnesses in rebuttal on other points, the witnesses being men who had known Loving for years. The object of the testimony of the witnesses in rebuttal was to disprove the insanity theory and to show that Judge Loving was regarded as a man of unusual intelligence and great physical development.

ESTES' UNCLE ON STAND.

E. L. Kidd, county clerk for Nelson, an uncle of Estes, said that he was clerk of the county court when Judge Loving presided over it, and that he regarded him as a very high man and a good judge. He had never seen Loving take a drink. It was at Mr. Kidd's home that Miss Loving spent the night after returning from the drive.

Others followed along the same general lines as to the mental and physical faculties of the accused man, all of them expressing the opinion that he was perfect in both respects.

This concluded the evidence for both sides, save that the State announced that

SENTENCE DEFERRED.

Convicted Mayor of San Francisco to Hear It Pronounced July 6.

San Francisco, June 27.—Eugene E. Schmitz, the convicted mayor of San Francisco, was to have appeared before Judge Dunne to-day for sentence on conviction for the crime of extortion in the French restaurant cases, but the passing of sentence was postponed until July 6.

As punishment for the offense the penal code prescribes confinement in the penitentiary not to exceed five years. It is within the province of Judge Dunne to name the length of the sentence which Schmitz must serve.

When sentence is imposed upon Schmitz Judge Dunne will be in position to clear the way for the reorganization of the city government. It will rest with him to send official word to the supervisors that Schmitz has been sentenced to State prison and that it is within their power to fill the vacancy thus created in the mayor's office.

FIRST UP MATTERHORN.

San Franciscan Opens Season for the High Alps.

Zermatt, Switzerland, June 27.—J. R. Glascock, of San Francisco, accompanied by a Swiss friend and four guides, ascended the Matterhorn to-day. It was the first ascent of the Matterhorn this season.

John R. Glascock was formerly mayor of Oakland, Cal., and was also in Congress from California. He was once defeated for Congress by Justice McKenna, of the Supreme Court, in a memorable campaign, in which the two able lawyers and orators engaged in joint debates on the issues of the day before their constituents in Alameda and Contra Costa counties.

HELD IN HIS BRIDE'S HOME.

Georgia Groom, Prisoner Six Weeks, Makes Escape.

Tells of Revolver Duel with Wife's Brother in Complaint for a Divorce.

Atlanta, Ga., June 27.—A story of marriage under duress and enforced imprisonment of six weeks in the bride's home, ending with an exchange of revolver shots between her brother and the groom, and the latter's escape, is told in a suit for divorce filed to-day by L. B. Jones, a young Atlanta business man, against his wife, who was formerly Miss Mamie Doster.

Jones, in his petition, admits he became engaged to Miss Doster last year. Six weeks ago, he says, the girl's father, C. M. Doster, came to him and told him that he must either marry his daughter or be shot. James Doster, the girl's brother, Jones asserts, also made threats. Jones further says that he is no coward, but he was compelled by the circumstances to obey; that the senior Doster bought the license and compelled him to come to his house and be married. Jones admits that the ceremony was regular, but says that after the wedding he was not allowed to leave the house, and was kept there practically a prisoner until last night, when he escaped after an exchange of shots with his brother-in-law.

During the six weeks of his detention, Jones further avers, he was reported ill, and his brother-in-law looked after his business. Both Jones and his bride belong to good families.

SPLIT ON FAIRBANKS.

Methodists Are Shocked Over Cocktails at Dinner.

ROOSEVELT'S VISIT IS CAUSE.

Prohibitionists Agitated Over Serving Seductive Appetizer at Dinner to Chief Executive—Vice President Said to Want to Be Lay Delegate to Big Religious Convention.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 27.—The temperance class at the Methodist Church here is preparing to oppose the selection of Vice President Fairbanks as a delegate to the quadrennial conference of the church, to be held in May, 1908, on the ground that he caused cocktails to be served at the dinner given President Roosevelt when the latter was here at the Lawton Monument dedication.

The selection of lay delegates from the Indianapolis conference will be made in September, and it is said that Mr. Fairbanks is anxious to be one of the delegates.

Mr. Fairbanks is a member of the Methodist Church, which has selected Charles E. Coffin and Oliver Carson to represent the church in the Indiana Conference at Columbus. It is understood that these delegates have been instructed to work hard for the selection of Mr. Fairbanks as a delegate to the larger conference.

Next May would be an opportune time for Mr. Fairbanks to appear as a member of a great religious body, his friends think, and it is believed he is very anxious to take advantage of the opportunity. However, the fact that he deigned his guests with cocktails and wine will have an important bearing on his selection as a delegate, as the Methodist Church is one of the strictest of denominations in its requirements of absolute temperance.

PROHIBITIONISTS AGITATED.

The wine luncheon has already caused great agitation among the prohibitionists of the State.

Its official State organ, the Patriot Phalanx, in its issue of to-day, contains a bitter account of the wine luncheon. The Phalanx refers to the alleged incident before the dinner when it was learned that the caterer had neglected to provide the cocktails, and that Mrs. John N. Carry, who was assisting Mrs. Fairbanks, immediately telephoned to the Columbia Club for forty of the necessary dinner openers.

It was related that Mayor Bookwalter volunteered the use of his automobile, which was sent to the club, and that when the guests arrived a Manhattan cocktail stood at each plate.

Some of the most influential members of the church have been appealed to on both sides, and it is expected that the selection of delegates to the quadrennial conference will bring on a lively controversy.

NEW YORK STRIKE SERIOUS.

Two Thousand Street Sweepers May Also Go Out To-day.

New York, June 27.—The situation caused by the strike of the drivers of the street cleaning department was more serious than ever to-day, and after a conference with a committee of the executive committee of the strikers announced that if the demands to be submitted to Commissioner Craven are not granted this forenoon, from 1,800 to 2,000 sweepers will strike. EXPLORER CONVICTS HIMSELF.

Dr. Peters Proven Guilty of African Cruelties by His Own Book.

Berlin, June 27.—There were dramatic scenes to-day in Munich in the course of the trial of the libel suit of Dr. Carl Peters against the Munich Post.

Dr. Peters is suing the Post for accusing him of being guilty of cruelty to the natives while he was German imperial commissioner in East Africa in 1891. Dr. Behel, the Socialist leader in the Reichstag, was on the stand and succeeded in convicting Peters of fiendish cruelty by quoting passages from a book that Peters himself wrote. Peters protested excitedly that the passages quoted were written in a spirit of humor. One of the sentences read:

"We shot them (the natives) off the trees like sparrows."

Other of the passages were of similar import.

There was a long fight between Peters, Behel, and the judge about getting at the name of the person from whom Behel got the information he used in the Reichstag in denouncing Peters. Behel succeeded in maintaining his refusal to disclose the name.

The proceedings were constantly interrupted by noisy partisan demonstrations in the courtroom.

E. W. BARRETT MARRIED.

Birmingham Newspaper Man Weds Georgia Belle.

Special to The Washington Herald.

Augusta, Ga., June 27.—At 8 o'clock to-night at the home of the bride's mother, on The Hill, Mrs. Lewis Butt Cunningham and Edward W. Barrett, owner of the Birmingham Age-Herald, were married.

Only the intimate friends of the bride and groom were present. Mr. Barrett is a former resident of Augusta and connected with some of the most prominent families of the community. The bride is well known as one of the most beautiful women of the State.

They left at 11 o'clock for Washington, from where they go to New York to sail on the Fourth of July for Europe.

Mr. Barrett was for a number of years Washington correspondent of the Atlanta Constitution. He is a nonresident member of the Gridiron Club.

AMPUTATES OWN LEG.

Wilkesbarre Miner's Nerve Saves His Life.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 27.—One of the most nerveless acts in the history of coal mining occurred to-day, when William Lameroux, a mine worker, coolly amputated his crushed leg with his pen-knife and then made a tourney with his handkerchief and a stick and stopped the flow of blood. His nerve and presence of mind saved his life.

He was caught under a fall of rock and one leg was horribly crushed. Lameroux was some distance from assistance, and, knowing that he would bleed to death unless something was done, he gritted his teeth, cut off the crushed portion of the leg with his pen-knife, and then bound up the wound as best he could. It is said he will recover.

STUCK BY LIGHTNING, LIVES.

Bolt Enters as Woman Opens Door, Tearing Clothes from Her Body.

Middletown, N. Y., June 27.—Though struck by lightning, her clothing torn from her body, and her flesh scarred and burned, Mrs. Mary Williams, a widow, residing in Montgomery, twelve miles from this city, is alive and able to tell of her remarkable experience.

During a heavy thunder shower Mrs. Williams opened the door of her home to look out, just as a bolt of lightning struck the door casing. The lightning was torn from the woman's right side and her shoulder was badly burned by the electricity. She was unconscious for several hours, but recovered under a physician's care.

JOHN M'ILHENY IS ACCUSED.

Rival Alleges Tabasco Sauce Maker Swore Falsely.

Memphis, June 27.—A special from New Iberia, La., says that John McIlheny, lieutenant of the Rough Riders, and recently appointed United States Civil Service Commissioner by President Roosevelt, is accused of making a false statement in an affidavit to secure the trademark for the word "Tabasco," which sauce has been manufactured by his family on Avery's Island since 1888, as was revealed by the filing of a suit by a rival concern for $20,000 damages this afternoon.

The concern is the New Iberia Extract of Tabasco Pepper Company, which has a plant here, and alleges that the McIlhenys had their agents send circular letters all over the country and Canada, threatening to prosecute any one selling any Tabasco sauce not manufactured and sold by the McIlheny concern, despite the fact that the patent on tabasco sauce had expired twenty years ago.

It is also alleged that suit had been filed against a Galveston concern for using the word "Tabasco," and that the court decided that the McIlhenys did not have the exclusive right to it, and that in making the affidavit for the registration of the trademark "Tabasco" in February, 1905, John McIlheny said that the word had been, to the best of his knowledge and belief, exclusively used by his concern since 1888, when it was a well-known fact that dozens of sauce manufacturers used the word, and that the McIlheny Company had a collection of such bottles of Tabasco which it had labeled its "Rogues' gallery."

The McIlheny concern is a corporation styled E. McIlheny & Son.

COSTLY STRIKE ENDED.

Caused by Quarrel Over Right to Cut Holes in Building.

Chicago, June 27.—Eight hundred men will return to work to-day on the new warehouse which is being erected for Montgomery Ward & Co. at Chicago avenue and the river, after a strike lasting nearly a month. Carpenters who were on strike refused to accept the terms offered, and will remain out.

Electricians and carpenters quarreled over the right to cut holes in the structure for wiring purposes. It is estimated that the contractors lost $25,000, while the strikers lost nearly $100,000 in wages.

FOR SAFE AND SANE LEADERS IN 1908.

Concerted Effort to Discredit Roosevelt and Bryan.

AN END TO RADICALISM

East Aims to Win Masses from Both Party Idols.

There Are No Signs of Reaction, However, in the Central or Far West, and the People Appear to Want a Continuance of Radical Policies—Third Term Bugaboo, and the South and Its Favorite Sons.

A year before the national conventions of the two great political parties there are evidences of activity in many quarters. Politicians are watching the signs of the times. With business at its lowest ebb in Wall street, the ultra-conservatives in the East are doing their utmost to shape public opinion to the end that both the Republicans and Democrats will name Safe and Sane candidates, and place them upon conservative platforms. Almost daily now slogans are sounded. For example:

"Stick to the Constitution."

"The Constitution is not to perish at the hands of the impassioned phrase-maker."

"The language of the Constitution is at war with the idea that the Constitution and Federal government represent one sovereign people, instead of the people of the several States."

These are epigrammatic utterances of the present week. The first is suggested to the Democrats of the nation by the New York Sun as the sole issue upon which to go before the people in 1908. The second is from a speech of Senator Knox, at Yale. And the third from the lips of that eminent Democratic jurist, Justice George Gray, of Delaware.

Missionary Work in South.

While these sentiments are voiced, a systematic effort, directed from New York, is under way to wean from Mr. Bryan the allegiance of the solid South. The changes are being rung upon his government ownership declaration in his Madison Square speech when he returned from Europe, and the hostility of Southern people to such a policy is appealed to in the aim to win them over to the support of another man—possibly one of their own section—instead of the Nebraska. Daniel, of Virginia, has been widely exploited. Singularly enough, the medium used to exploit him has heretofore shown decidedly Republican tendencies, and a rather cordial relation with Wall street. Coincidentally, the availability of Culberson, of Texas, is under discussion. While the rank and file of Southern Democrats still show an enthusiastic loyalty for Mr. Bryan, there is an undercurrent of conservative sentiment running against him, and it is hoped, obviously, to so play upon this and strengthen it in the ensuing twelve months that the demand in the convention will again be for a Safe and Sane standard bearer, as in 1904. This too, in spite of the overwhelming defeat that came to Judge Parker.

TRANQUILITY AT WHITE HOUSE.

Equally active are the elements hostile arrayed against the renomination of Theodore Roosevelt. It is the ultra-conservatives who are loudest in their insistence that he cannot afford to break the pledge voluntarily given to the people on the night of the last national election. There is no conceivable circumstance, they declare, that would warrant him to change his mind and make another race. He could not afford to do it. It would mean Mexicanizing the American form of government to keep the President in office for more than eleven years. The sentimental objection to a third term is so deeprooted, they say, that it is almost impossible to go to the party disaster. Republicans of the Hanna school grow eloquent in touching upon this phase of the political situation. The Rooseveltian policies, in which the masses of the people so heartily believe, will go forward, of course, but with a new man at the helm of the ship of State—Taft, or Knox, or Fairbanks, or Cannon. Reactionaries, these! Not a bit of it. The old guard will tell you so. Coupled with this reassurance, however, and with adroitly suggested enigmas of Roosevelt, are suggestions that a period of greater tranquility at the White House would be helpful to business interests; that any one of the aspiring gentlemen named would tempt the favorite son stage; that a political quantity than do the Democrats. In their opinion, if the next President be not Roosevelt he will likely be Bryan. They believe that as against any other Republican there is a better chance of election.

ROOSEVELT'S "SECOND ELECTIVE TERM."

The Republicans who are insisting that Roosevelt run again have taken up the idea first advanced by Senator Bourne, of Oregon, that it would be a "second elective term" and not a third term to which he would be elected. They ridicule the idea that Roosevelt's administration has been in the least degree responsible for shrinkage in values or for stagnation in Wall street. They produce figures to
